Commentary

Inflation is the economic measure with the greatest power to determine the course of financial markets over the next year. With many of the distortions wrought by the pandemic still working their way through year-on-year statistics, it is too early to judge if the spike in inflation is transitory (as central banks largely continue to insist) or is becoming entrenched. Bond markets duly provided a rollercoaster ride for investors in the third quarter. In the UK, 10-year gilt yields fell from 0.7% to 0.5% in July before doubling to more than 1% in September to leave investors with a loss over the quarter. Despite the increase in yields, our return expectations for government and high-quality corporate bonds remain modest. High-flying stock markets also had their wings clipped by soaring bond yields in September. Equity valuations are lofty and companies not only face higher tax rates but also a squeeze on profit margins from rising wage, energy, raw material and transport costs.

Inflation the overriding factor for financial markets
