GWM Asset Management aims to manage the portfolio with a volatility greater than 13.9% over rolling 10 year time periods. This is not guaranteed and actual volatility may fluctuate outside of these boundaries. ## Commentary

A much anticipated recession has yet to appear. In fact, economic growth has broadly been positive across the board, although outside the US recent gains have been much more modest in nature. Interest rates have risen sharply in the Western world and whilst there is a risk that inflation proves stubborn, not helped by high wages and recent oil price rises, we believe that we are at least near the end of the monetary tightening phase. Inflation continues to fall, with a greater than expected drop in the UK in August. Both the US and UK held rates steady in September and whilst Europe hiked, they indicated it may be the last time. After a brutal 2022 bond markets haven't moved nearly as dramatically in 2023, suggesting a lot of the adjustment to reflect higher interest rates has already happened. Global stock markets traded quite choppily in the third quarter, but most markets are in positive territory this year.

Interest rates may be peaking
