Commentary

Governments are spending to upgrade our economies, and specifically on areas such as defence and welfare, whilst they want their national banks to support them by cutting interest rates. So, we have fiscal and monetary policy on the accelerator and stimulus on full throttle, which explains why bonds are increasingly expensive and why equities are rallying.

In Q3 the equity exposure within the portfolios has drifted up while fixed income drifted downwards. To re-align the portfolios with their intended positions, a rebalance has been implemented to help support the portfolios long-term objectives.

The portfolios had a strong quarter principally driven by the rally in equities.
